Principal's Message

"Future Vision For The Pharmacy Profession"

Every day, pharmacists make a difference in people's lives. Modern healthcare is complex and getting more complicated all the time. Often, patients lack the information they need to make good decisions and may struggle to afford the medications prescribed. Pharmacists are medication experts who work with the healthcare team to help patients achieve individualized healthcare goals. Pharmacists are an under-utilized resource in health care and we see opportunities for pharmacists to really become a patient's partner in preventing and managing illness, improving transitions between different levels of care, as well as their medication use. There is much more pharmacists can do to help build an integrated care system that is centered on individual patients' needs, within their community, and throughout every stage of life. I believe that today, more than any other time in my career, the profession needs pharmacists who are leaders not only committed to improving the health and wellness of their patients but willing to advocate for their profession.
